

Working Together TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE

A YEAR IN REVIEW | TRIANGLE COMMUNITY FOUNDATION | 2016 ANNUAL REPORT

The Power of Community

“Alone, we can do so little; together, we can do so much.” – Helen Keller

We all work together – donors, nonprofits, community leaders – toward a single goal. To make a difference for those who need it most.

Triangle Community Foundation envisions a community where everyone has the opportunity to thrive. We have been right here for the last 33 years, growing and changing along with our region – and we will continue to be here for the next 33 years and beyond. But alone, we can’t have a lasting impact. It is our donors – a diverse group of passionate individuals who make up the Foundation family and are dedicated to changing the landscape of our region for the better – who work with us to address critical needs in our community. Each of them has a unique story, vision or goal, but they all have one thing in common. They believe in the power of community giving. And we do too.

We are a partner for donors.

Why? Because working with individuals and families will help connect them with critical causes to make a greater impact now, and to create a legacy for the future.

We are a funder of nonprofits.

Why? Because we are committed to building stronger, more impactful organizations in our region, investing in them so that they have the capacity to affect the change they so passionately seek.

We are a resource for local issues.

Why? Because we need to work together to bring about change. We are poised to gather leaders and research with the goal of an informed, educated, active, and inspired community.

2016: A Year in Review

Friends,

2016 was a big year for the Foundation. We launched a new co-investing initiative with donors, in youth literacy and community development, with great success leading to additional grants for our dedicated partners. We hosted 500 leaders at What Matters: A Region of Opportunity with keynote speaker Dr. Tony Iton from the California Endowment, which initiated many discussions about equity and opportunity in our region. We embarked on our own internal equity assessment, ensuring that we start on the path to providing more equitable services and programs for our region. And – we moved! Our office relocated from American Tobacco Campus in downtown Durham to the heart of Research Triangle Park at The Frontier.

Our Focus on creating a region where everyone has the opportunity to thrive, specifically through research, education, and funding in the arts, community development, environmental conservation, and youth literacy remains strong as we move into the future of the Foundation. We are encouraged through our work with donors who are steadfast in their commitment to solving critical issues in the community so that we can make a significant impact. During the 2015-2016 fiscal year, our donors made $15.4 million in grants locally, a $4.5 million increase from the prior year! We hope that you enjoy reading their stories in this annual report – and recognize, as we do, the incredible impact that working together makes for those who need it most in the Triangle, each and every year.

Best,

Giving Together

In 2016, the Foundation started "Giving Together," a new program created to increase impact by pooling resources to support organizations making a difference in the community. Through this new program, we brought donors the opportunity to co-invest their dollars with other fundholders and the Foundation to support nine of our past Youth Literacy partners and ten of our past Community Development partners.

This new program was a huge success. Working together with donor-advised fundholders, we were able to provide $45,000 to our Youth Literacy Partners and $46,550 to our Community Development partners.* We are so thankful for the generous support of our fundholders who are dedicated to the future of our region through these programs, and invite you to learn more about Our Focus partners in this report.

What Matters Community Luncheon

500 passionate leaders joined us at the sold-out 2016 What Matters Community Luncheon: A Region of Opportunity on April 27th at the Raleigh Convention Center. The conversations on equity, diversity, structures, policy change, changing the narrative, widening gaps, healthy communities, and celebrating our differences left us so inspired! We participated in two powerful exercises during full opening sessions led by OpenSource Leadership Strategies, focused on how we all can be more equitable in our giving and in our work. Our President and CEO, Lori O'Keefe spoke of access to opportunity in the Triangle, and focused on what we are for, rather than against. And Dr. Tony Iton, our keynote speaker from the California Endowment, gave a provocative and passionate talk on health inequities, the importance of social service, and how we must work together to change the narrative, if we want to change our community for the better. He closed to a standing ovation!

There have been many meaningful conversations since this event, and we believe that they are leading to us to work together to build a thriving community for everyone.

Innovation Award

Each year at What Matters, the Foundation presents a $25,000 Innovation Award to a nonprofit collaboration doing innovative, exciting, and problem-solving work in our community. We ask them: What could you do with $25,000? Could you solve a community problem?

2016's winner was Fostering Youth Opportunities, a collaboration of the Hope Center at Pullen, Wake Tech Community College, United Way of the Greater Triangle, Durham's Life Skills Foundation and the Orange County Partnership to End Homelessness. This collaboration allows for a single touchpoint for young people aging out of foster care to overcome hurdles like finding jobs and housing.

Philanthropic Awards

At the 2016 What Matters Community Luncheon, we presented two philanthropic awards honoring two couples who have shaped our Foundation, our region, and have created a legacy for the future. Julia and Frank Daniels, Jr. accepted the Legacy Award, while Barbara and Jim Goodmon accepted the Catalyst Award.

Legacy Award Winners Julia and Frank Daniels, Jr. have a lengthy and rich history with Triangle Community Foundation as active fundholders since 1989, philanthropic partners and positive leaders. When the Daniels family sold the News and Observer Publishing Company in 1995, the couple made gifts and deferred gifts that effectively doubled the total assets of the Foundation. The size of their commitment – along with the family's role and legacy in the community – deeply validated our work and helped inspire others to work with the Foundation as a philanthropic partner.

Catalyst Award Winners Barbara and Jim Goodmon have been fundholders at Triangle Community Foundation since 1999. Their contributions have been broad and formative, and they helped secure the Foundation's growth at a critical juncture over the last decade. Barbara and Jim are also noted for the emphasis they put on the role regionalism plays in the overall success of the Triangle – a role they honor and recognize through business decisions, their reach into the nonprofit community and through their philanthropic work.

Bus Tour

We believe that information has the power to drive positive community change. As a resource for community issues, the Foundation takes our role in educating, learning, and convening very seriously. Working together to learn more about the region we call home is the first step toward making change for those who live here.

In early March, donors and community leaders joined Foundation staff for two simultaneous bus tours in East Durham, one focused on education and the other on housing. This tour and the panel that followed are just a part of the Foundation-wide effort to learn more about our community, its needs, and the services that important nonprofits are providing to residents of this neighborhood.

Scholarships

When Daniel Flores arrived in Chapel Hill from El Salvador five years ago at age 14 to join his mother, who had left him with his grandmother and aunt six years earlier so she could find a job in the US, he could not speak English.

It took him two years to learn the language, and he struggled in school. But his senior year, he took honors and advanced-placement courses at East Chapel Hill High School. He also played on the varsity soccer team, and worked at part-time jobs after school and weekends in addition to caring for his mother while she has been undergoing chemotherapy for ovarian cancer.

He enrolled in Fall 2015 at Appalachian State University in Boone, where he plans to major in nursing. He will help pay for his tuition with a $50,000, four-year scholarship from the Felicia Brewer Opportunity Scholarship at the Foundation.

"It means a lot to me," Daniel said last year of the scholarship. "When I came here, I didn't know if I was going to get to finish high school because I didn't know English. When I was in high school, I didn't know if I would get to go to college. I've been through a lot."

Editorial Note: Daniel's mother passed away just before this report was produced.

The Felicia Brewer Opportunity Scholarship is one of the many scholarship funds making an impact in our region. This scholarship was created in loving memory of Felicia Berkman Brewer by her father-in-law, Don Brewer. It creates a life-transforming opportunity for an immigrant or first generation student who has overcome significant adversity, giving them the chance to pursue their dreams and improve their lives.

Giving Circles

Giving circles are an increasingly popular and important form of philanthropy, allowing a group of individuals to combine resources to have a larger impact on an organization or issue area.

Though the amount of money individual members contribute to their giving circles may be relatively small to some, the impact of those dollars is significant and far-reaching. We believe in the power of giving circles and are proud to administer seven of them at the Foundation.

Our Focus

Capacity Building: Strengthening our Sector

Triangle Community Foundation believes in building strong nonprofits in our region. Capacity building can provide a lifeline that allows an organization to grow, to dig deeper, and be more effective, so that they may in turn make a greater difference. That's why the Foundation specifically funds capacity building through the Fund for the Triangle in several of Our Focus programs – community development, regional arts, youth literacy – and why many of our donors support building stronger nonprofits.

In addition to funding capacity building in Our Focus, we collaboratively support many initiatives, including the following:

- Executive Service Corp. Board Boot Camp – A six session training series geared toward new board members of Triangle area nonprofits. Each session has specific learning objectives aimed at improving the operating effectiveness of the participating nonprofit boards.
- NC Center for Nonprofits Town Hall events – Meetings to get a preview of major upcoming trends, threats, and opportunities for nonprofit leaders.
- Chatham LIVE – A half-day workshop for Chatham County nonprofit leaders to come together around an emergent issue, and learn, together.
- YNPN Triangle's #NonprofitStrong Summit – An annual conference that brings together nonprofit professionals from across the region for a full day of networking and professional development.

Community Development

What Our Donors Do

She walked into the rural Florida emergency food center on the arm of a disheveled, swaggering man. She was noticeably younger, she didn't speak, and her gaze only fleetingly raised to meet Tim's that day. The man she came with did all the talking, and when they left that day, Tim Walter describes that he was haunted by the encounter. Fresh out of college, he was working for a farmworker association that brought resources from urban areas to rural areas with a large refugee and undocumented worker population. Tim says this was the first woman he'd met who appeared to be captive or abused in some way. This early experience has stayed with him over the years.

Skipping ahead a few decades, now in 2016, Tim jumped on the Foundation's Housing Bus Tour with other funders and community leaders who visited East Durham. Unfamiliar with Durham's housing and poverty issues, he was eager to learn about the services available and what impact organizations are having in the area. He'd recently become interested in how society treats its most vulnerable members, which led him to an interest in combatting human trafficking and violence against poor women and children. Tim quickly felt a connection to Housing for New Hope and arranged a grant with Foundation staff before the tour day concluded. He shared that their comprehensive approach made it well-suited to help someone struggling with a "simple" case of temporary homelessness to a more complicated case of an abused woman seeking a new start. Like most graduates with an MBA, he peppers conversations with concepts such as an efficient economy, but he is also grounded by generosity rooted in a profound sense of how fortunate he is.

He is honored to be able to help people and be in their midst. He believes that not every encounter with others needs to be mediated by an exchange of money. "Furthermore, it's a better life to make giving commitments first, then see what's left over. In some ways, I'm probably not so different from a parent who makes similar choices every day."

What We Do

We believe in the importance of funding Community Development in the Triangle. Comprehensive approaches that include components of housing, employment, and mental and physical health not only provide basic human needs, but also build individual empowerment and strengthen the community.

OUR FOCUS

Tim is a Durham native, and has been a fundholder for over 10 years at the Foundation. He is currently working to bring a diverse art center to downtown Durham, preserving and standing up for the role of culture in our community.

OUR FOCUS

Regional Cultural Arts

What Our Donors Do

Spending most of her career in public policy and community redevelopment, Carol Robbins is no stranger to the opportunity gap, particularly as it is related to children and access to cultural resources.

But it wasn't until she retired that she has been able to combine this knowledge with her love of the performing arts – choral singing, to be exact.

She doesn't remember a time when she didn't love to sing, participating in various vocal ensembles while growing up and in college. Choral singing fell by the wayside, however, for decades while she was working. But, when she jumped back in, she jumped all in, through a "summer camp for grown-ups" in the Berkshires that provided a concentrated learning experience for amateur choral singers. Once again immersed in this passion, she and her husband headed to North Carolina, and Carol began to notice something about the arts locally that bothered her.

There was a very prominent racial gap in the groups she saw perform, both adults and children, and she decided that she wanted to do something about that – to bring the experience of singing to everyone. Carol's fund at the Foundation, Youth Pro Musica, was born in 2000 out of this desire, and she focuses most of her grantmaking on the mission. Funding for nurturing the next generation of diverse choral singers, to ensure that students can travel to festivals or competitions with the rest of their class, even if they can't do fundraising for a trip in neighborhoods mired in poverty or crime, is an example she shared.

She stressed that it's so important to support the arts for children – especially choral music. "Many studies have shown that ensemble singing is the avenue to other kinds of learning and accomplishment. It brings kids together in a unique way: they discover pride in assuming responsibility and in collaboration. Besides, it's fun, and it's something they can do in 40 years when they're older than their parents are now. They soar...and take us with them."

What We Do

We believe in the importance of funding the arts in our community. Access to the arts provides meaningful connections and communications between individuals, our community, and the greater society.

How much is enough?

That question stuck in Dave Goulding's mind after participating in a JustFaith group at his church, where they met once a week to learn about major issues like hunger, poverty, racism, immigration, and more. He started adding up all of the birthday, anniversary, and holiday gifts that were exchanged in their family – with four children and four grandchildren – and decided it was too much. He wanted to ensure that they were giving “enough” back to make an impact, and at the same time, that he was involving his family in this larger purpose.

Rather than giving a gift in Dave's family now, he sends a card to the recipient and a check to their family fund, which opened in 2007 at the Foundation, and his wife Lenda and children do the same. Since the inception of the fund, the family, who takes turns directing the grantmaking on an annual basis, has made 73 grants totaling more than $100,000! That's an impressive total for a small family fund, as he would say, and he's excited to pass the decision-making on to his granddaughters in the coming years.

Each family member's passion is noticeable, as the fund's direction changes a bit each year based on who is in charge of grantmaking, but for Dave, the environment has come up more than once. That JustFaith class (that he's now facilitating) has been emphasizing environmental issues, including Pope Francis', "Care for our Common Home" encyclical, talking about climate change and excess consumerism. A former biology major, Dave says that he feels like he's been learning about the negative effects of humankind on the environment for much of his life, and that it's so important for us to continue learning. Stressing the importance of awareness and that he isn't sure people are even aware of the major issues in our community, Dave shared that for him, it's important to get out of his comfort zone and see what's going on elsewhere.

"There's a lot more complexity to environmental issues than – Hey, just fix your pond. It's about learning. Let's have dialogue, not discussion, respectfully learning and listening from a different perspective, by not judging it."

What We Do

We believe in the importance of funding environmental conservation in our community. By increasing land conservation and its stewardship, building public awareness, understanding, and support of conservation through innovative programs, we can protect our natural resources for the Triangle's future.

OUR FOCUS

Dave joined his wife Lenda's Cary, NC real estate team in 1998 after a 22-year career in the life insurance business where he specialized in estate and business planning. As a philanthropist who believes in family giving, he supports many critical nonprofits in the Triangle and beyond.

OUR FOCUS

Youth Literacy

What Our Donors Do

For a man with a big heart, giving back in his community seems like a natural way to honor his daughter, Julia, who passed away suddenly in 2001. All of his family's grantmaking is reminiscent of her, something she would have been proud of or something that reflects her. So for Paul Harrison, when the theme of their fund needed adjusting following a federal healthcare change that began to cover preventative care and vaccines, a shift to funding education needs in the region seemed only natural.

When the Foundation organized a community taskforce several years ago, leading up to Our Focus program areas, as a board member and concerned citizen, Paul elected to join to learn more about the critical needs in the region. Rather than spending his time discussing healthcare, his career pathway, he chose to sit at the Our Focus: Education table, and says that it was then that he developed an interest in the needs of the children in our community. The capacity to read by grade level at the end of 3rd grade and the capacity to learn and stay on task with the current educational curriculum in the years ahead is of vital importance to everyone, he said. If children can't keep up in fourth grade, they "don't stand a chance" of graduating from high school, and succeeding in life, and Paul stressed the importance that we should all care about that.

His interest in early literacy continued to grow after his participation on the task force. It was at a series of Chapel Hill Chamber meetings attended by many local nonprofits, school leadership and community leaders where he realized that there is so much knowledge out there that has not yet been tapped – and that connecting school systems with nonprofits and funders is something necessary to garner a greater outcome – and in this instance, it will take a whole community to raise a child.

While Paul says that he hasn't yet found the best way to make the greatest impact in educational needs in the Triangle, he is eager to learn more about the Campaign for Grade-Level Reading, a new focus of Triangle Community Foundation's literacy efforts and a likely pathway and willing to continue learning and searching for the best way for all of us to work together to ensure all kids can reach their potential.

What We Do

We believe that a child's reading ability by the end of third grade is an early predictor of future success. The Foundation seeks to increase the number of children reading at, or above, grade-level by the end of third grade by investing in the capacity of organizations and community-wide efforts supporting early learning.

Field-of-Interest and Unrestricted Funds

A field-of-interest fund allows donors to designate general areas of interest while the Foundation selects specific organizations to receive support. An unrestricted fund allows the Foundation to identify the most pressing needs and promising opportunities in our region and target funds where they can be most effective.

Community Leadership Funds

Triangle Community Foundation is grateful for donors over the past three decades who have contributed to the funds below. Gifts to these Community Leadership Funds make it possible for the Foundation to work toward its vision for the Triangle region to be a place where everyone can thrive.

Invest in the Triangle

Funds that address the most pressing needs, inspire philanthropy, and develop a strong nonprofit sector in the Triangle region.

- Fund for the Triangle supports current needs in four areas: the arts, community development, environmental conservation, and youth literacy.
- Regional Community Endowment Fund addresses evolving community needs – today and for generations to come.
- Send A Kid To Camp Program provides camp tuition assistance for local children in need, in an effort to prevent summer learning loss.
- Catalyst Project Endowment Fund promotes philanthropy in the Triangle especially with businesses, entrepreneurs and professional advisors.
- Shannon E. St. John Philanthropy Endowment Fund invests in cutting-edge philanthropic initiatives and trains future philanthropic leaders.
- Disaster Relief Fund supports local disaster relief and recovery efforts when needed.

Support Triangle Community Foundation

Funds that help Triangle Community Foundation build community knowledge, encourage great ideas, and convene partners from the public, private and nonprofit sectors to move important efforts forward.

- Triangle Community Foundation Endowment Fund ensures that the Foundation will be a strong and sustainable philanthropic leader in the Triangle today and for generations to come.
- Triangle Community Foundation Operating Fund provides resources for the Foundation to carry out its core work of investing in the region and inspiring philanthropy.

TCF Real Estate Foundation

The mission of the TCF Real Estate Foundation, which is a supporting organization of the Foundation, is to receive, manage and liquidate gifts of real estate, ultimately pouring sales proceeds into one or more TCF charitable funds created by the donor. Simplifying gifts of real estate and assuming the administrative burden of such gifts for the Foundation, TCF Real Estate Foundation currently holds real estate assets totaling approximately $5.4 million.

Agency Funds

An agency fund is established by a nonprofit organization or government agency as part of its overall financial strategy. Agency funds can be endowment funds that support organizations in perpetuity or they can be non-endowed funds to invest cash or strategic reserves.

Giving Circle Funds

Giving Circles allow donors to give with others, pool resources and decide as a group which organization will receive grants.

20/20 Sisters of Vision

Christian women empowering women and children in local and global communities to improve their quality of life in areas such as health, education, economic development and spirituality.

A Legacy of Tradition (ALOT)

Continues the legacy of giving by bridging the gaps of African American males through education, collective giving and community responsibility.

The Art of Giving

Leverages the power of collective philanthropy as it works to connect women in meaningful and purposeful ways, and to benefit women and families in the Triangle region.

The Beehive Collective

Raleigh young professionals organizing fun projects and pooling their collective talents to raise meaningful amounts of money to support causes they care about.

Heritage Quilters

Women of Warrenton promoting the knowledge of the art of quilt making and preserving the history and lore of fabric art.

Next Generation of African American Philanthropists (NGAAP)

Promotes collective giving of time, talent, and treasure to improve the quality of life for African Americans in North Carolina's Triangle region.

The Longleaf Collective

A nonpartisan giving circle of members ages 18-40 that believes in the ability to make a meaningful impact in the state of North Carolina.

Building a legacy for generations to come

Triangle Community Foundation created the George H. Hitchings Society to recognize donors who set up gifts to the Foundation in their estate or financial planning. The society is named for the Foundation's creator, Nobel Laureate Dr. George Hitchings, and honors those who build resources for the community by naming the Foundation as a beneficiary in their wills, trusts, insurance policies, or retirement accounts.

Individuals who include legacy charitable gifts in their estate or financial planning serve as an example and inspiration for others.

The Foundation gratefully acknowledges

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Our Board of Directors* comprises a group of the region's leaders. The Board is the Foundation's governance and policy-making body. As such, the Board bears fiduciary responsibility for the legal, financial, administrative, grantmaking, community service, and fundraising activities of the Foundation.

New members are elected to the Board after recommendation by a Nominating and Governance Committee. Board members serve a three-year term and may be re-elected for one term.

We've Moved!

In November of 2016, Triangle Community Foundation moved into a new space at The Frontier, in the heart of Research Triangle Park. Because of the generosity of our donors, we are thrilled to be able to offer our region's nonprofits access to our new community space for meetings and events. We look forward to welcoming these organizations as they continue to further their missions, as well as our fundholders into our new office. For more information on our move and how you can access space, please visit our website at www.trianglecf.org.
