Triangle Community Foundation Announces $1.5M in Grants
72 Nonprofit Organizations Receive Awards During 2025's Grantee Week

Research Triangle Park, NC: Triangle Community Foundation is pleased to share the recipients of five grant programs this week. One of the largest one-time disbursements of grant money for the Foundation has come from the following grant programs:

- Responsive Grantmaking - to nonprofit organization needs in this season of uncertainty, specifically to help maintain capacity through a period of organizational change.
- Environmental Resilience - to nonprofit organizations increasing awareness of and education around conservation and/or climate issues and increased climate resiliency, particularly of low-income communities.
- Economic Resilience - to nonprofit organizations supporting populations seeking to overcome barriers to family-sustaining employment.
- Land Transaction - to nonprofit organizations in support of donated and purchased land acquisition transactions and related stewardship expenses in order to increase the pace of conservation in the Triangle.
- Housing Affordability - inaugural grant cycle to nonprofits addressing housing affordability.

“It is really gratifying to be able to get this money out into the community at a particularly challenging time for many nonprofits,” said Lori O’Keefe, President & CEO of the Foundation. “We hope this funding provides the boost needed to continue addressing organizational missions while also maintaining stable operations.”

A few things about this round of funding are unique and special:

- The Foundation was able to grant four times more than expected in our Responsive Grantmaking program due to a generous match from fundholders Pat and Tom Gipson.
- This cycle includes the inaugural cohort of grantees from the Foundation’s new Housing Affordability grant program.

Every day this week the Foundation will be sharing the grantees from each of the five programs, beginning with the 24 grantees from the Responsive Grantmaking program receiving a combined total of $436,525. Announcements will be shared on the Foundation’s social media channels with further details provided on the Foundation’s blog.
